- Determine the required level of complexity of all roles, and compare the complexity of roles according to the same criteria
- Create 'Flow' and engagement by placing employees into the 'right' roles where their capability matches the complexity of their positions
- Ensure your structures and role profiles are designed correctly
- Ensure employees understand what they are accountable for
- Ensure that the correct activities are being conducted throughout the organisation so that your strategy can be executed
- Ensure each employee is provided with sufficient freedom, accountability and discretion to perform their tasks optimally
- Get 'real' value from the outputs of any levels of work product i.e. comparing a candidate's capability to the requirements of a role
